Washington Institute for Policy Analysis
The Washington Institute for Policy Analysis has published a new report titled "Chapeau: Assessing Gaza Ceasefire Year One." The report, authored by senior fellows, examines the progress of the ceasefire in Gaza following the October 7 attacks. It highlights the challenges of implementing a ceasefire and the need for a comprehensive approach to achieving a lasting peace. The report also discusses the impact of the ceasefire on the humanitarian situation in Gaza and the role of the international community in supporting the process.

Chapeau: Assessing Gaza Ceasefire Year One

The ceasefire in Gaza, which took effect on January 19, 2024, has been a significant development in the conflict. However, the report finds that the ceasefire has not been fully implemented, and there are still many challenges to achieving a lasting peace. The report also discusses the impact of the ceasefire on the humanitarian situation in Gaza and the role of the international community in supporting the process.
