

Jewish 'Spies' on Trial: A Window on Human Rights and Minority Treatment in Iran

Aug 1, 1999

In-Depth Reports

Examines the Islamic Republic's history of dealing with religious minorities in order to shed light on the June 1999 indictments of thirteen Iranian Jews on charges of spying for Israel and the United States. The paper also reviews the international response to the indictments and the Iranian leadership's past reactions to such appeals. ❖
