New maritime and military agreements may pull Ankara into Libya's civil war, adding yet another foreign actor to an already tortuous multilateral showdown.

When a country's diplomatic style is confrontational, what do you get? Confrontations. It has become Turkey's signature style. But winning confrontations, or giving the appearance of doing so, can be a challenge. And Ankara may have been wrong-footed in a swiftly worsening crisis, prompted by a new stage in the Libyan civil war...
